The conference seeks to challenge existing interpretations of the last phase of the Cold War by presenting the result of new research in the field and by introducing new interpretative paradigms.

In particular, the conference is designed to work towards a new narrative of the last decade of the Cold War that accounts for the fact that several critical new aspects and factors emerged during that time that changed the nature of the international system.

The conference will also try to trace the roots of the contemporary international system to the developments of the late 1970s and early 1980s.

Structurally, the conference seeks to overcome the often exaggerated division in analysis of the period between the Carter and Reagan administrations by highlighting elements of continuity between the two presidencies and within the whole period in general.

At the heart of the conference is the effort to gain greater understanding for the fundamental shift from a bipolar confrontation to a truly global one, the impact of the new industrial revolution in the field of technological innovation, and the return of the US to a position of global leadership and the interconnections between all three developments.

The conference is jointly organized by CIMA and CWIHP, with financial contribution by the Universities of Florence and Roma Tre, SPRIPE (Scuola di Dottorato in Storia Internazionale, politica e del pensiero economico) and the U.S. Embassy in Italy.

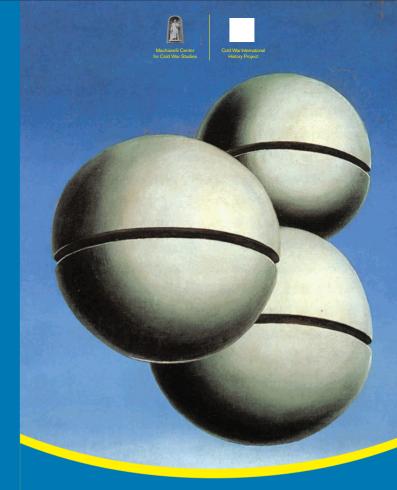

CIMA

The Machiaveli Center for Cold War Studies (CIMA) is an inter-university center which links the activities of a number of Cold War Historians based at the Universities of Florence, Padua, Pavia, Perugia, Roma Tre, and Urbino. The project rotates around the activities of the Dipartimento di Studi sullo Stato of the University of Florence, perhaps the most important Academic institution for international studies in Italy and certainly the core of a large network of international Academic contacts.

Past events organized by CIMA were "Diplomazia delle risorse. Le materie prime e il sistema internazionale nel Novecento" (Urbino, 2001), "NATO, the Warsaw Pact and the Rise of Détente, 1965-1972" (Dobbiaco/Toblach, 2002), "The Road to Helsinki. The Early Steps of the CSCE and the Problem of Human Rights" (Florence, 2003), "L'Italia e la guerra del Vietnam - Riflessioni tra storia e politica trent'anni dopo la fine del conflitto" (Rome, 2006)

CWIHP

The Cold War International History Project (CWIHP) was established at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C., in 1991 with the generous support of the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. The Project supports the full and prompt release of historical materials by governments on all sides of the Cold War, and seeks to accelerate the process of integrating new sources, materials and perspectives from the former "Communist bloc" with the historiography of the Cold War which has been written over the past few decades largely by Western scholars reliant on Western archival sources. It also seeks to transcend barriers of language, geography, and regional specialization to create new links among scholars interested in Cold War history.
